Foundation flounders over lack of funds

By Janice Harrington

Concerns are being raised over the continued operation of the Mount View Foundation because of a belated grant cheque from the provincial government.

Mount View Foundation Chairman John Grimstead said current funds are running thin for the operation of the 3 senior's lodges the Foundation administers in the county.

"We always have an operating loan because our fiscal year is January to January but municipal budgets aren't set until much later," said Grimstead. "That usually means we run from January to April without our yearly funds, then when we get the municipal requisition and the government grant, we pay for the first part of the year's operation and use the remaining for the rest of the year."

But despite receiving all the municipal requisitions from towns in the county, the Foundation is running dangerously close to broke because funds from Municipal Affairs, under the Senior's Lodge Assistance grant program, is more than a month overdue.

Grimstead said inquiries into the whereabouts of the money has shown that the grant had not even been processed as of last week.

"I guess one of the problems is that the department didn't realize that we had 3 lodges this year instead of 2 (referring to the lodge opened in Carstairs last December). I find that very interesting because they are the people that build them."

Grimstead said that the Foundation is continuing to press the government to hurry the funds and has asked Olds/Didsbury MLA Roy Brassard, who is also Minister Responsible for Seniors, to look into the delay.

In the meantime, the delay is making administration of the lodges in Olds, Sundre and Carstairs a very difficult process said Didsbury's Foundation representative Marjorie Malinowski.

Rub-a-dub-dub

Three tots in a tub, or almost. These moms and their little ones took some time out during the sunshine last week to enjoy a little splash at the outdoor swimming pool in Olds. Pictured is Tracy Bauer and Debbie McColman along with tykes Katelynn, Julia and Kayla. The sunshine was a welcome break for urban dwellers and farmers alike.

"Because of the changes this year in the whole program, we don't even have any idea what kind of funding we can expect this year," she said. "We just can't do any planning as a result. They've taken what should be a relatively simple procedure and made it very complicated."

Both Malinowski and Grimstead said the Foundation, which is composed of representatives from all the municipalities in the area and the county, may have to turn back to local taxpayers for more cash.

"And that's a difficult proposition in itself considering all the towns' budgets have been set," said Grimstead.

Grimstead added that payment of the grant had been promised by press time. Sandra Lam, spokesperson for Municipal Affairs said she believed a cheque had been sent out, but did not have definite confirmation. She said delay in the payment was because the grant for the Foundation is much higher this year than last and required a more detailed examination.

Municipal Affairs deals with a number of boards across the province like the Mount View Foundation which were established under provincial regulation to administer senior's housing.

Accident claims one life

By Janice Harrington

A car accident near Carstairs has killed one person and sent three others to hospital.

Didsbury RCMP said 75-year-old Nellie Savil of Calgary died last Tuesday of injuries sustained in a two-vehicle accident which happened about 2 km south of Carstairs on Hwy. 580 around 8:30 a.m. on July 28.

Savil's passengers, Joan and Ronald Marshall of Cheshire, England were sent to hospital with serious injuries. Ronald was flown to Calgary by STARS ambulance for treatment of a broken pelvis. Both the Marshall's had been listed in stable condition.

The driver of the second car, 30-year-old Connie White of Carstairs, was taken to the Mountain View Health Care Centre in Didsbury for treatment of injuries and was later released.

Didsbury RCMP are continuing to investigate the cause of the crash.

When I was about 8, my folks bought The World Book Encyclopaedia. We were all delighted with this leather-bound compendium of information and for years after its arrival somebody was looking up something most of the time. I think my appetite for trivia developed from the World Book and I still use the Britannica we bought for our kids on a regular basis.

Looking up things was only one of the hobbies that I attribute to my childhood encyclopaedia habit. The other is a lot less mind expanding but if you want to while away some time on a hot summer afternoon or on a long trip it can be fun. It requires the formation of alliterative sentences and I got caught up in it one day when I was carrying my little brother Dale and Dad expressed an interest in his forefathers' birthplace, of Dumfries. Mom turned to me and said, "Put Dale down Darling and get Dad the D book." I was hooked and I've been alliterating madly ever since.

Start with "A", work your way through the alphabet and see how many truly silly sentences you can construct. If you can find a friend or family member who is equally foolish you can take turns but I warn you it can become habit forming and it is inclined to irritate some of your more reasonable and literal minded acquaintances. I construct the sentence first and then decide how it might apply to a situation. With the following sentence, I imagined a young couple visiting the Everglades when the boy takes fright and climbs a tree. The girl laughs as him . . . "Archie approached Alison angrily, 'Alison,' he argued, 'I've always acted awfully awkward around alligators.'"

My brother-in-law Jack reminded me that tongue twisters like, Peter Piper's peck of pickled peppers, are often alliterative and he offered, "black bugs blood" as an example. Try saying that 3 times fast. He also contributed, "Brawny bully Billy beat bawling Bobby badly." That one is pretty graphically self explanatory as is my effort for "C". "Coming close to the curving crescent Carl's car crept cautiously."

My current entry for "D" sounds like it came from an old English novel. "Douglas drawled diffidently, 'Dearest Diana, don't dress so drearly, it's dreadfully depressing.'" The best "E" I could manage on short notice was only four words but it is a sentence. "Edward enunciates everything elegantly."

"F" is another one that is going to require some set up. Fanny is a girl sports writer who insists on doing post game interviews in the locker room. Some of the athletes resent this and when a hulking football player throws something at her, her boyfriend Freddy intervenes . . . "Fearing for Fanny's fragile face, Freddy flew fearlessly forward and fielded the flying footlocker."

Leaping forward to "P", I like . . . "Patio and pool party at Penelope's parents place," Percy piped. "I was going to throw in pig pasture, as in 'Penelope's parents' pig pasture' but I thought that was straining the bounds of credibility somewhat because nobody has a pool in a pig pasture and if they did who would want to go to a party there?"

And here is another one my brother-in-law contributed. "Rascally Rhonda ran rings round the rotund Rosie."

The people who write headlines have been playing with alliteration since newspapers were carved into rocks and headlines are fair game for amateurs too.

Suppose a neighborhood is no longer neighborly and a citizens committee organizes a big block party to cement relations . . . "Barbecue Breaks Barriers and Beef on a Bun Burns Bridges." Suppose a missionary somewhere in the jungle encounters a group of pygmies who examine the man rather closely and scare him half to death before he discovers that they are peaceful . . . "Peaceful Pygmies Poke Petrified Preacher." And if they are not so peaceful and are in fact headhunters . . . "Pastor Poked, Parboiled and Pickled by Pygmies."

And now for one final headline that certainly does not apply here . . . "Critics Claim Columnist Created Cutsie Column to Acquire Crude Cash."

Museum society looking for volunteers

By Janice Harrington

Attempting to hold onto the past isn't an easy job, Ian Douglas will tell you.

Douglas, a director with the Didsbury and District Historical Society, said it's been getting harder and harder to attract members of the community to work for the Society.

"We are concerned about getting new blood in here," he said. "Most of us have been in since the beginning and we want to make sure the work keeps going."

Work for the Society volunteers isn't as sedate as one might imagine. Douglas said Society president Arleen Douglas keeps the volunteers very busy.

"This isn't just an honorary sitting," he said. "We like to get things done on our own; no government grants. We call it looking after the soul of the community."

Some of the work being done lately by the Society involves renovation of old school building which houses the museum. Earlier this year, the Society was busy fundraising for a new roof for the building as well as repairing extensive water damage throughout the three main floors caused by the old leaky roof. Despite the damage, Douglas said the building has weathered its years well.

Everything is nice and solid about this place, it was built well," he said. "And it's the only building from Calgary to Red Deer with this significance. It was built in 1905 and all the other places with this type of design have been destroyed."

Besides renovations to the building, the Society is always constantly on the prowl for items to add to the museum's collection. The goal of the Society is to depict Didsbury history, as well as possible, beginning at the prehistoric age.

"It's hard getting people to realize that what they have in their attics or garages is significant," said Douglas, who has made many museum finds by scouring yard sales. "We just want to let people know that it doesn't have to be valuable to be valuable to us."

Future plans for the museum include the creation of a reading room with a historical library, a theme room depicting the history of a number of events or groups in the area, and an art gallery. But Douglas again stressed that volunteers are needed to help get these kind of projects off the ground.

The museum is open Wednesday through Friday from 2 to 5 p.m. Each visit is free (although donations are appreciated). Those interested in helping preserve a record of Didsbury's past can call the Society, or attend one of their meetings held on the third Wednesday of every month at the museum.

STARS promises no change in service

By Janice Harrington

The end of a contractual agreement between the Shock Trauma Air Rescue Society in Calgary and the provincial government will not change emergency service for south central Albertans.

STARS spokesperson Joanne Ballendine said residents in the area can still rely on the same emergency response from the society which flies the severely injured or ill from the rural area to city hospitals when needed.

"Basically with the end of the contract, we are just back to where we bill the government for our time in the air," said Ballendine. "And now we are just put on the rotational roster."

STARS contract with Alberta Health expired last weekend after the society decided against adding a fixed wing aircraft to their emergency air vehicle service in southern Alberta.

Ballendine said the main issue over renegotiation of the contract with Alberta Health was the requirement that STARS have 2 air craft. STARS currently uses a fully medically equipped helicopter for the transport of patients. The helicopter is staffed by volunteer medical personnel.

As a result of the ending of the agreement, Ballendine said STARS will no longer have first right of refusal on priority 1 patient transfers which have been initiated through the government. STARS will be added to the roster of a number of available patient transfer services and dispatched according to how the government sees fit.

But while this may appear as if STARS will be working less in this area, Ballendine said STARS has built up a number of contacts over the years.

"Will just continue to work with our rural contacts as usual," she said.

STARS recently worked with the government on the development of a minimum standards guideline and plans to negotiate again for a contract when the time comes. The contract for STARS service out of Edmonton remains intact.

Is It Wrong To Cry?

When a friend or loved one dies, it is only natural for you to give way to grief—and for you to cry.

Tears are therapeutic in more ways than many of us realize. They give us an emotional outlet, providing us with specific physical action that we can perform. At the realization that a friend or relative is gone, tears may come easily for both adult and child—and this is good!

Most people do not need encouragement to cry, since it is so natural to weep in sorrow. It is not un-masculine to cry at the death of a loved one or a dear friend. It's a misconception that "big boys shouldn't cry." This is all a part of the "stiff upper lip" and "grin and bear it." If there is an emotional hurt, then the pain should be recognized, acknowledged, and expressed—in this case, through tears.

Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome—in private or publicly through this column.

OPINIONS/EDITORIAL

A golden moment

By Janice Harrington

Seeing the look on Mark Tewksbury's face when he realized he had won his first gold medal was enough to make any Albertan believe in their dreams.

Shattering an Olympic record and finally winning his most sought after goal, Tewksbury, a 24-year-old from Calgary, showed us that hard work and perseverance do pay off. And, just perhaps, it's shown us a little something of that deeply hidden emotion most Canadians rarely feel called national pride.

When you think about it, Canadians should be proud of what our athletes can accomplish. We have a number of stars here. It's easy to come up with a few great athletes when you have a population in the hundreds of millions like the U.S., but when Canadians manage to produce great, golden athletes from a paltry population base of 27 million—well that just goes to show you how well we breed them up here in the "frozen north."

And it shows you just how well we breed them here in the west. This is the second gold medal of this year's edition of the Olympics to be won by an Albertans (remember Karen Lee Gartner?). They aren't the only Olympic-calibre athletes either, there are more Albertans participating in swimming and on the Canadian volleyball team and they all deserve our cheers whether or not they come home with a medal. They've already proven that you can be everything you dream of no matter where you're from, and their brains and class are great examples for children—showing them that you don't have to shoot up to match up.

Thank goodness the court case against Canada Post regarding the closure of rural post offices won't be costing tax payers anymore money. The idea behind taking public post office work away from government-run Canada Post and putting it under the auspice of private enterprise is to save money. Albertans have known for years that businesses run more efficiently when someone is trying to make a profit from it, but for some reason this logic is clouded whenever someone mentions post office and private business in the same sentence.

Putting a post office in a private business means better service for the customer—longer hours of operation and, hopefully, far fewer postal hikes. It doesn't mean delivery of your mail will suffer. These private post offices will still need staff so some jobs won't be lost.

Besides, this is the reality of the 90's. We want the government to cut costs, as a result, things have to change.

Documentary brief offered

Dear Editor:

Earlier this year, the CBC aired a T.V. series ("The Valour and the Horror"). Two of the episodes—dealing with Bomber Command The Normandy Campaign—have been the subject of objections from veterans and many historians.

The film was produced by Galafilm of Montreal (a privately-incorporated company affiliated with some high-profile CBC journalists). Perhaps on the assumption that they could not defend their message, the producers began attacking the messenger.

The CBC officials mounted a major offensive, labelling a Senate enquiry an "inquisition." A number of senior journalists supported the CBC. On the other hand, evidence condemning the film by some of Canada's leading war historians never got into the media reports.

At stake? The perception of future Canadians regarding what we did during the war. The losers? All Canadians, because they may have been manipulated. The series pretends to be an anti-war message. Instead, it is an indictment of the Canadians who fought against Hitler's aggression.

In challenging the series, I am using the procedures available to all Canadians; that is, the CBC Ombudsman and the CRTC. The chances are, however, that our submissions will never make it out of the bureaucratic circles.

Taxpayers' money was channelled to a private company. According to letters on my file, the NFB is involved to the tune of nearly $750,000; Telefilm contributed $1 million. Figures presented at the Senate hearings indicated $2.5 million from the CBC. Could the total cost, including promotion by the broadcaster, be close to $4.5 million?

These state-funded agencies operate beyond the reach of the public and parliament—and when anyone objects, they raise the bogeyman of censorship, or resort to personal attacks on the detractors.

The whole subject needs to be ventilated with the public. Admittedly, some of the print media have been helpful, but newspaper space is at a premium. There is an alternative.

We have prepared comprehensive briefs. They expose at least a dozen major flaws in the film. One focuses on the aerial bombardment of German cities. Copies are available through The War Amputations of Canada, 2827 Riverside Drive, Ottawa, K1V 0C4 or, you can order a copy by calling 1-800-465-2677 and we will invoice you. A cheque for $5.00 would be appreciated to cover postage and handling. Quite apart from their validity, the submissions are a "good read" and well worth the money. (They run from 60 to 70 pages each.)

It is in the interest of all Canadians to see this material. As a War Amp, I have the full support of my own organization but I must accept responsibility for this so-called "campaign." Anyone wishing to comment, please write to me personally: H. Clifford Chadderton, OC, O. Ont., DCL, Chairman, National Council of Veteran Associations.

Yours sincerely,

MP's column

Physically phitt!
By Louise Feltham
Wild Rose MP

Many Canadian children are not physically fit enough to play any strenuous game! Consider:

- * Most elementary students spend an average of 25-30 hours a week in school--sitting. Most receive only two 30 minute periods of physical education classes a week.

- * Canadian children spend an average of 26 hours per week in front of the television set.

- * 40% of Canadian children have at least one risk factor for heart disease.

- * 40% of Canadian 5-8 years olds are obese.

- * In grade 2, one child in four cannot touch his/her toes.

- * 30% of today's high school kids take physical education; twenty years ago, 80% did.

A recent Gallup poll found that 85% of Canadians think that daily physical education should be mandatory for all students from elementary school through high school. This is not a new idea. Even Plato recommended physical education. In fact, he suggested that for the first 10 years of life, education should be primarily physical so that children's bodies grow strong and healthy.

There used to be a common saying, "sound mind--sound body," and the belief that the two really do go together. In fact, there are studies that support this. One was done by French researchers over a 10 year period. It showed that children who spent 8 hours a week on physical activity and 15 hours on academic work learned and retained more than children who did not exercise as much.

We are conscious that physical activity is good for adults--as well as children--we know it can be just plain fun. Summer is a good time to share that fun!

A word from Charlie Mayer

--Federal Minister for Western Economic Diversification

Many rural communities have benefited from the more than 3,000 projects assisted by the Department of Western Economic Diversification since its establishment in 1987.

The Department has provided a total of about $1 billion in funding, which has levered over $2.5 billion in additional private financing. And already, over $42 million has been repaid.

Those 3,000 projects have generated around 37,000 jobs--and some of those jobs are in small towns and villages where the prospects of employment had been very limited.

This week, as WD nears its fifth birthday, I'd like to tell you about the dreams of some of the West's rural entrepreneurs--and how, during the past five years, WD has helped turn those dreams into reality.

Let's take a look at British Columbia first. In the Okanagan town of Kamloops two paramedics decided that a spineboard widely used for the care of accident victims just really wasn't very effective or efficient; so they designed their own. They talked to WD staff, who recognized the new version had potential. WD provided some repayable assistance to the paramedics--and now they're selling their new spineboard across North America.

In Alberta, in the agricultural community of Olds, a local company took a look at some of the problems faced by third world countries in obtaining water.

One of the biggest difficulties was fuelling and maintaining pumps supplying water for irrigation and for animal and human consumption. So the Olds company--with the help of WD funding--developed a low-cost, long-life submersible solar pump. Now that pump is being sold by a world-wide marketing network, with full-time distributors in 11 countries.

In Lanigan, Sask.--a town of 1,698 people--a special plant was established with a dual purpose. First, it was set up to produce ethanol, an environmentally-friendly fuel. When that plant was completed with some repayable WD assistance, it also produced a by-product from the ethanol output: a protein feed which is a low-cost, high quality ration for cattle. The feed sale also helps lower production costs of the ethanol.

A great idea--and one which has brought jobs to Lanigan.

Next, let's look at the tiny farming community of Rosenort in Manitoba. There's a company in Rosenort which was set up to make specialty parts and refits for the drums on concrete trucks. WD lent some money to help out with an upgrade and consolidation of production. Now the company has been named the Canadian distributor for a major concrete drum manufacturer, and has customers not only here in the West but also across North America.

There are many, many other success stories in the rural communities. And WD is proud to have played a role in those successes. We're still a young department--but our achievements are significant and are having a positive effect throughout the West.

Province to begin road improvements

The Government of Alberta will invest $3,746,621 in a major road improvement project in the Olds-Bowden area, Minister of Transportation and Utilities Al "Boomer" Adair and Olds-Didsbury M.L.A. Roy Brassard announced recently.

The contract was awarded to Everall Construction Ltd. of Edmonton, lowest of seven bidders. The job involves grading, base paving and final paving on Highway 2A from north of Olds for 13 km to south of Bowden. The project also includes upgrading the intersection of Highway 2A and Bergen Road.

Mr. Adair said: "Upgrading this narrow section of Highway 2A is a high priority with area residents. Scheduled for completion this fall, the upgraded section will be safer for all traffic."

New child seat offered in Alberta

Sandi Riddett, owner of Wetaskiwin's Your Choice Store, is the first Western retailer to carry the newest child-safety device Child-Safer (TM) a simple, removable plastic bar with slots which repositions a standard three point safety belt, safely and securely across a child's upper torso.

The invention of Montrealeur Phil Gray, Child-Safer (TM) was conceived after Gray received a fine and demerit points for having innocently removed the shoulder belt from across his son Wesley's face. Gray found that, like himself, other parents often placed the standard shoulder belt behind their child's head, thus making it useless and depriving the child of any upper torso or back support during a collision. Moreover, he states "parents are unaware that the cause for this is often due to the fact that children after they have graduated from their safety seat and booster seat are still too small for an adult's seat belt." By using Child-Safer (TM), parents are able to secure youngsters in their seats snugly, comfortably and safely.

Child-Safer (TM) has successfully undergone extensive testing at certified Government Test Facilities in Canada and the United States.

Child-Safer (TM) is made of high impact plastic, is child tamper proof and is now available in colours designed to match standard automobile interiors as well as in a series of neon brights. The suggested retail price is $19.95.

For further information on Child-Safer (TM) call 1-800-934-4646 or Diane Schrenk & Associates Inc., (514) 844-9478.

4-H show draws 125 members

The recent 16th annual provincial 4-H heifer show and judging contest drew 125 members from across Alberta, from Worsley in the north to Pincher Creek in the south.

"Participation was right up there, and despite the rain we had a great show," says Henry Wiegman, Alberta Agriculture provincial 4-H livestock specialist.

Many familiar names were back in the winners circle in 1992. One of those names was multiple winner Carrie Cholack, 13, of the Lamont club. Cholack teamed with her brother Stephen to win both the intermediate team grooming and judging contests. Teamed with Tova Place of Nanton Beef, Cholack won high show ring team judging. In her own right, she was second in intermediate showmanship to Shannon Northay of the Bashaw Beef Club and showed the reserve champion Charolais heifer.

Another brother and sister team also made its mark at the show. Kristi and Kurt Trefiak of Edgerton combined for top honors in both junior team grooming and judging team. They won the same grooming award at the 1991 show. Kristi also took home first place in junior showmanship in 1992.

A brother combination was one-two in the junior freshman competition. The freshman classes are for 4-H members participating at their provincial show. Members are judged on their showmanship skills as well as their animal's conformation.

Richard Grant, 12, and his brother David, 11, of Bow-Inn Beef were grand and reserve champions respectively with their yearling Salers heifers. Both repeated in the championship class for "other purebreds," and Richard went on to be runner-up in the junior showmanship class.

A senior team also swept the team grooming and judging contests. St. Paul Multi Club members Denis Kotowich and Kyla Makowicki also placed third in the show ring team judging. Kotowich was also runner-up for high judging reasons.

"The show ring judging competition really prepares members to go out and be judges," Wiegman says. "Members use all the judging skills they learn about placing animals according to conformation, they have to present their oral reasons to the crowd and work as a judging team in the ring." Jason French and Syd Gerig of the Double Diamond Club of Westlock were second to the Cholack-Place team in the show ring judging competition.

Curtis Werenka, 17, of Sangudo was another multiwinner. Werenka's yearling Red Angus was declared the supreme champion purebred at the show. He also was the senior champion showman. Kim Svitch, 16, of Chipman was second to Werenka in the showmanship class. West Didsbury Club member Bobbi-Gayle Hosegood took supreme reserve purebred champion honors with her two-year-old Simmental cow.

Cross-bred supreme champion was a Maine-Anjou/Angus cross yearling shown by Colin McNiven of the Dusty Plains Multi Club (Duchess). Brownfield Beef member Ken Adair's Simmental cross yearling took reserve honors.

Senior freshman honors went to Kelly Uly of the Olds Multi Club with her yearling Simmental. Dale McGlynn of the Pincher Creek Foothills Club was the reserve champion with a yearling Red Angus.

Other winners in the judging contest were: Katie Krotech, Hastings Coulee Club, high junior individual; Maureen Mapin, County Livestock Judging Club (Byemore), high intermediate individual; and, Scott Swanek, Lethbridge-Coaldale Club, high senior individual and high individual reasons.

The club herdmanship award went a different direction for the first time in five years with the Pincher Creek Foothills Club emerging as the winner. Runner-up St. Paul Multi had won the last four herdmanship competitions.

The Bashaw and District Agricultural Society hosts the provincial competition and Alberta Treasury Branches is its major sponsor.

Early weaning option for beef producers

Beef producers faced with shortages of grass or water should consider early weaning says an Alberta Agriculture nutritionist.

Better growth of calves and less loss of condition on cows are the benefits of this management option says Dale Engstrom, acting head of the animal nutrition section. "There are several advantages for both cows and calves. A dry cow has a much lower requirement for feed and water than a suckled cow, so is better able to maintain her body weight on relatively poor quality pasture.

"The young, early weaned calf—if fed properly—is more efficient than an older calf in converting feed to gain," he adds.

Seldom practised in Alberta, early weaning of three- to four-month-old calves is a routine practice in many areas of the U.S. Studies there have confirmed the benefits of early weaning. An Ohio study, for example, found early weaned calves (110 days) and their dams were 43 per cent more efficient in converting feed into calf gain than cow-calf pairs weaned at the more traditional 220 days.

"Early weaning allows a more efficient use of the limited feed you may have in drought conditions. That feed efficiency means it's cheaper to feed weaned calves and cows separately rather than as suckling pairs," says Engstrom.

If calves are weaned early, it does mean more work than when a herd is on grass. "But, the economics are still favorable," says Engstrom, "even taking into account the extra labor and management required."

Calf nutrition and management are crucial to success in early weaning. A balanced ration is key, and the most important ingredient is a good quality forage. Silage or hay can be used, says Engstrom, as long as it's not too mature, is free from dust and mold, and is readily eaten by the calves.

Grain should be fed at approximately 1.5 per cent of body weight. As well, it should be coarsely ground or rolled. Whole oats can be used instead of barley, but the amount should be increased by 10 per cent.

"Calves need a highly palatable grain mix, so they will eat enough," Engstrom notes. "You might need to reduce dustiness by adding two or three per cent of wet molasses or canola oil."

Rations must include all necessary vitamins and minerals. Protein supplements should contain little or no urea.

One ration Engstrom suggests is a mix of 65.5 per cent alfalfa-grass hay (about seven pounds per head per day), 25 per cent barley grain (2.7 lb./head/day) and 9.5 per cent of a 32 per cent beef supplement (a pound per head per day). Barley silage supplemented with barley and beef supplement is also suitable. Both rations are appropriate for 300 pound calves gaining two pounds per day.

Horse & Hound keep couple hopping

Operating a family restaurant is no picnic, but Sherry and Gus Kouis says they wouldn't have it any other way.

About three months ago, the Kouises moved up from High River to open up the Horse and Hound Family Restaurant in the Olds Mini-Mall along Highway 27—an opportunity Sherry says she's glad they took. "It was kind of scary moving up here to start a new business and build up the public's confidence in your service... but it's really turned out well."

Sherry says in what is being tagged as a tough time for most rural businesses, the Horse and Hound Restaurant is actually doing pretty well for itself. Business has picked up so much, in fact, that sales have quadrupled since they first opened their doors. The reason? According to Sherry, the careful preparation of all entrees is the first to come to mind.

"My husband has 20 years experience in cooking... he used to operate the Beef and Brew Restaurant in High River before coming here. He just loves to cook."

Sherry, herself has 14 years experience in the restaurant industry. "I've worked in it for a long time in one aspect or another... I like the P.R. aspect of the business; dealing with the public and meeting new people that come in."

While Sherry didn't mention if her husband has any culinary secrets in particular, she hints some may lie in the manner in which he prepares the food. All sauces, salad dressings, and gravies, for example, are home-made. "We spend practically all our time here... it's really difficult to find a good cook you can trust and he likes to do most of the cooking himself."

And cook he does. Menu choices span a wide variety of family favorites including steak and pizza, pasta, submarines, burgers, sandwiches and lighter fares. "We also do half orders for kids and seniors if it's requested," Sherry adds.

The Horse and Hound Restaurant stays open from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. Monday to Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Sunday.

Canola hybrid tour in Olds

A field trial will be conducted during the '92 summer season in Olds, Alberta by the Alberta Wheat Pool's Research and Development department on the initiative of Plant Genetic Systems, Belgium, in order to confirm the potential of the new PGS hybrid system in Canola.

The development of new canola varieties with higher yielding ability remains one of the major targets of breeders. The creation of F1 hybrids appears to be the most efficient route for reaching this goal. Hybrid canola varieties are estimated to yield 20 to 25 per cent more than the best open-pollinated varieties. Within this scope, Plant Genetic Systems (Belgium) has established its hybrid system which is based on the insertion of specific genes into existing varieties of canola and has tested the performance of the system in a number of countries.

The system is composed of highly specific functions introducing the complimentary traits of male sterility and its restoration, and two tracer functions enabling convenient monitoring and recovery of the desired plants at any stage of crop development.

This trial will address the performance of the new system and the absence of side-effects on the crop quality under typical Canadian growing conditions. As such, the trial fits in a multi-side approach with trial-sites in the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

The total experimental area is approximately 550 metres squared and is surrounded by a 10 m cover strip. All nearby fields will be planted with crops other than canola. The crop will be established and grown using normal techniques, with additional detailed monitoring of the test plots and the surrounding area. After harvest, all plants will be destroyed and, for three years, the site will be monitored for volunteer plants which will be recorded and destroyed. A permanent record of all treatments in the experiment and its precise location will remain available for inspection by the authorities.

The entire trial program has been cleared by Agriculture Canada, Animal and Plant Health Directorate, Plant Products Division.

Museum receives display grant

By Janice Harrington

The Roulston Museum in Carstairs takes history seriously, even down to its display cases.

The Carstairs and District Historical Society was the recent recipient of $900 from the Alberta Museums Association for the purchase of antique display cases to be used in the museum.

Museum Curator Betty Ayers said the new cases are themselves objects of historical interest.

"We have them dated at around 1900," Ayers said. "But the first we know about them for sure was in 1910 when they were in the Lee Hon Cafe' in Acme. I guess it was quite a popular spot for children and adults because these cases were full of candies."

Ayers said the new cases, which they purchased from the recently closed Stone 'n Bone Jewellers, will be used to house some of the museum's more fragile displays.

"In one we have handicrafts from the turn of the century," she said. "Crochet, tatting, embroidery and things like that. We have a 4-H display and one with lace collars that the ladies used to wear around 1900-1910 and evening bags. The other has children's pinafores from the 1920's."

The grant for the cases comes from the provincially funded Alberta Museums Association under their special projects grant programme. Applications for 51 projects from non-government museums were made under the program for this quarter. Thirty-four grants in total were made totalling $83,951.

The Carstairs and District Historical Society also raises money locally to help operate the Roulston Museum. Their next fundraiser is the annual Pioneer supper, planned for October 3. Tickets for the event will go on sale this fall.

The museum is open to the public every weekday from 2-4 p.m.

Second Sundre rodeo scheduled

By Janice Harrington

Area cowboys will get another taste of the wild saddle this month when Sundre's second rodeo of the year begins.

The Sundre F.C.A. (Foot-hills Cowboy Association) Rodeo, organized by the Sundre Rodeo and Race Association, will take place August 8 and 9 at the Sundre Rodeo Grounds.

Rodeo organizer Allison Ellithorpe said Sundre has been holding rodeos for many years, but this will be the first year the Association has ever teamed up with the F.C.A.

"There have been rodeos of all kinds going on around here since the early 1900's," said Ellithorpe. "But now we are associated with a professional rodeo group."

The staging of this F.C.A. rodeo will mark the 20th anniversary of the date of the last F.C.A. rodeo held in Sundre and the 37th anniversary of the creation of the F.C.A.

The F.C.A. was created in the Sundre area and its first executive consisted of many County of Mountain View residents.

In recognizing the role of the F.C.A. in amateur rodeo, Ellithorpe said her association is extending personal invitations to a number of long-time F.C.A. members for a special introductory ceremony at the rodeo.

"Many people who started out in the F.C.A. have moved far away from here," added Association member Lesley Munns. "It would be great if we could get some of them back here."

The rodeo itself will begin Saturday at 1 p.m. at the covered grandstand at the Sundre rodeo grounds. All the main rodeo events will be featured as well as contests for open team roping and local cattle penning.

Beer gardens will also be set up on the grounds for both performance days. Cost to get into the rodeo is $6 per person.

A cabaret featuring the live music of T.C. & Company will be held Saturday night at the Sundre Arena. Tickets cost $6 each. Children 12 and under will be admitted for free.

Bridge repairs scheduled

Alberta Transportation and Utilities advises travellers in the Sundre area to be alert for traffic restrictions currently in place because of repairs on the Red Deer River Bridge in the Town of Sundre.

During most of the repair period traffic on the bridge will be one lane and directed by signs, traffic lights and flagpersons. Drivers should proceed with caution and obey all signs, signals and personnel in the area. The project is scheduled for completion in late August.

Inn raises cash for STARS

By Janice Harrington

A cup of coffee purchased in Cremona over the weekend could help save a life.

The proceeds from the coffee and the GST from every breakfast bought at the Hawk's Nest Inn Saturday morning were donated to the Shock Trauma Air Rescue Society for what Hawk's Nest owner Connie Jewell hopes will become an annual tradition.

"We don't have all the numbers done yet, but between Irene Schultz and us, I think we raised over $200," she said.

Jewell, who took over the Hawk's Nest earlier this year along with her husband Al, was carrying on a Hawk's Nest tradition with Schultz in holding a STARS benefit. Hawk's Nest manager Sandy Kinch said a Christmas benefit is usually held every year.

"A few days before Christmas is when we usually do this," Kinch said. "But we decided to add this. Irene Schultz who sells Tops & Trends also gets involved. At Christmas, she wraps presents and donates a portion of her sales from Avon. This time she put on a fashion show and donated a portion of her sales from Tops & Trends."

The breakfast, which went from 9 a.m. to noon, attracted a large number of hungry philanthropists. Jewell said there were even some Calgarians among the group who came specifically to help out STARS.

STARS is a non-profit, emergency air ambulance service which transports critically ill or wounded patients from the rural area to city medical centres. The helicopter used in this service is staffed by volunteer medical professionals and the provincial government helps to pay for STARS operations, but the Society also relies heavily on donations.

Jewell said she hopes to make the breakfast benefit an annual fundraiser for STARS.

Columbus—The discovery

By Ron Tyler

The following installment of stories is based on the voyage of Christopher Columbus, the man famed for the discovery of the Americas. 1992 is the 500th anniversary of this voyage. To mark the occasion, The Review will publish, every two weeks until December, stories detailing the trip and how it impacted on life here.

Part I

"In fourteen hundred and ninety-two Columbus sailed the ocean blue."

These lines in an early 20th century poem by Winnifred Sackville Stoner herald the 500th anniversary of Columbus's arrival in the Americas.

How do we interpret this journey? Is it an occasion to be celebrated, or does it mark one of the bloodiest turning points in human history?

We have the opportunity now to rethink his and subsequent encounters between European immigrants and indigenous native peoples.

The trip started in early August, 1492 from the village of Palos in the southwestern corner of Castile, Spain.

"Friday, August 3, 1492-- We departed Friday the 3rd day of August 1492 from the bar of Saltes at the eighth hour. We proceeded with strong sea winds until the setting of the sun toward the south sixty miles, which are 15 leagues; afterwards to the southwest and south by west, which was the course to the Canaries."

The voyage had begun. (Ron Tyler is a grade 4 teacher at Ross Ford Elementary School in Didsbury and a history buff.)

Breastfeeding benefits children with special needs

Human milk offers a number of advantages when used as the primary source of supplemental phenylalanine to the infant with phenylketonuria (PKU). Breastfeeding may be continued in the newly diagnosed phenylketonuric infant without any apparent adverse nutritional consequences. (McCabe L, et al. The management of breastfeeding among infants with phenylketonuria, J. Inher Metab Dis. 1989.)

Discussion at this month's meeting will include suggestions about nutrition for nursing mothers and their families as well as information about weaning the breastfed baby.

The meeting will be held on August 13, 1992 at 10:30 a.m. at 20th Ave. and 20th Street, Didsbury (ECS Portable). Babies

Chase ends in arrest

By Janice Harrington

A recent chase by the Didsbury RCMP has ended in the arrest of one man.

In a press release issued last week, Didsbury RCMP said 26-year-old Michael George Wallner was arrested for impaired driving, dangerous driving and failing to stop for a police officer after a 20-minute chase in and around Carstairs early Friday morning.

Wallner, from Elnora, Alberta, was finally stopped about 10 km southwest of Carstairs. He will appear in Didsbury Provincial Court on August 25 to answer to the charges.

Tyson first to get two gold albums

Ian Tyson, long one of Canada's leading singers and songwriters, has been awarded a gold album, signifying sales of over 50,000 copies of his record I Outgrew the Wagon.

Tyson is now the first male country singer in Canada who has received two gold albums--the first was awarded for Cowboyography, which is now close to platinum (100,000 copies). The only other male Canadian country singers to have "gone gold" are Stompin' Tom Connors and George Fox, who have each received one gold album in their careers to date.

I Outgrew the Wagon was the fourth in a series of five unique albums that Tyson has released with Edmonton-based Stony Plain Records. The albums all contain songs relating to the lives of working cowboys, past and present. The songs come in large part from Tyson's own daily experiences running a 140-acre ranch near Longview, Alberta.

Cowboyography, the third album in the series, was released in 1986 and was the breakthrough for Tyson. He has since been honoured with a Juno Award for Country Male Vocalist of the Year, and was inducted into the Juno Hall of Fame with his former singing partner, Sylvia Tyson, earlier this year.

"The success of these albums has been really encouraging," Tyson said. "I owe an enormous debt to the fans across the country who seem to have found stories in these songs with which they can identify."

Tyson continues to tour with his band, the Chinook Arch Riders, alternating appearances at fairs, concert halls and dances in Canada and the United States with intense periods of work on the ranch.

Local adult hockey players needed

The manager of Team Western, an adult hockey team based in Winnipeg, is looking for players to participate in two recreational hockey tours of Europe this winter. One is to Russia while the other takes in the Alpine regions of Germany, Austria and Italy. Don Finkbeiner is organizing the tours for players regardless of ability, and hopes to "find some interested area players to sign up." Finkbeiner adds, "all the players have a lot of fun, visit some fascinating countries plus meet and compete against Europeans." In addition, the tours are escorted by former

New York Ranger Ted Irvine and former Winnipeg Jet Jordy Douglas.

Each player is responsible for his own travel expenses while the club provides uniforms, jackets, hockey bags and makes all the arrangements. Players from British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and some of the Northern United States have participated in the past.

The entire roster is filled on a first-come-first-serve basis and the team will play 5 non contact exhibition games during the 11 day tour. All area players are welcome and can receive free registration information by contacting Don Finkbeiner at tel: 204-831-7029 or fax: 204-831-7243.

Clubhouse sandwich

There is no book to take the place,
Of fairways and nice greens,
Try golfing, and you'll learn first hand,
Exactly what fun means.
Intentions count for little,
Because once you get out there,
The course becomes a carrot,
and
Each golfer turns to hare.
A blanket contraction game,
And, butts and lots of its,
Wondering how that little ball,
Can cause so many whiffs.
And yet in very instance,
To the finish from the start,
The scenery is doubled,
Awful score but happy heart.
Golfing, split brain syndrome,
Doesn't matter who or when,
All of them says, no, way,
Jose,
All says, let's go again.

Southwest Didsbury news

By Bessie Eckstrand

Sympathy of the area is extended to Linda Arthur, husband & family and Pat Bird (Stevens) as father Ronnie Bird of Blackie passed away in the Calgary Fanning Center on July 8th at the age of 74 years. He suffered from a serious car accident four years ago and had been a resident at Fanning Center for three years. Funeral services were held in High River.

Congratulations and best wishes of the area go to Cheryl Weber of Didsbury and Kevin Ehret of Carstairs who were united in marriage at a beautiful wedding service on July 18th at the Didsbury Missionary Church. Rained most of the morning, but cleared up for the receiving line. The reception for 150 guests was held at Westglen School. The happy couple will reside in Calgary.

The weekend of July 17-19 was a busy and delightful one for Ruth (Goetzen) Balderson, who celebrated her 80th birthday, by attending a surprise birthday supper on Friday night for 35 of her immediate family, at Westcott Hall. Westcott W.I. catered and a most delicious supper was enjoyed by all.

On Saturday, Ruth's brothers and sisters and their families joined in to further celebrate and honor sister Ruth by having a campout and lovely potluck supper at Rugby Hall.

The Sunday celebration continued with an open house and many relatives, friends and neighbors enjoyed a lovely meal, visiting and reliving old times. Deloyce, Elaine, Marjorie and Les Goetzen and families appreciate the help of everyone and all who took the time to stop by and to make their mother's 80th birthday celebrations such a success.

"Happy Birthday, Mom."

Dave & Phyllis Bricker spent the last month touring England, Scotland and Ireland and visiting with many relatives in Aberdeen, Belfast and Dublin. They visited several cathedrals including St. Pauls and Canterbury in London. All were very large and beautiful and acoustics were wonderful. They reported it had been dry in England, but rained before they left and everything was nice and green as is usual for England.

Visiting Henry & Ursula Kuelker for a month is Ursula's sister Tutta and friend Hanna of Germany. They are enjoying the Canadian scenery and visiting with relatives.

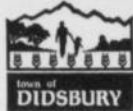

Sympathy of the area is extended to the Snyder family as brother Delton passed away on Tuesday, July 28th. Funeral was held at Bethel E.V. Church (Carstairs) on Friday, July 31st. Delton lived and farmed in the west Carstairs area all of his life and will be sadly missed by his many relatives and friends.

Congratulations and best wishes go to area residents Joan & Lynn Hunsperger, who celebrated their 50th wedding anni-

I think we've had enough rain for a few days; farmers would be happy to get a few days for haying. Crops are starting to ripen and gardens and flowers are flourishing and hopes are for a bounteous harvest.

Date To Note: Birthday family supper picnic will be held Aug. 6th, Thursday evening at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Bev. & Gerald Felker, west Didsbury. Bring weiners and buns, salad or dessert.

Friendly gathering

Didsbury and area farmers enjoyed a summer BBQ and plot tour last week when Westway Seed Farms held their annual summer plot tour. The tour highlighted some of the new developments in the growing industry.

Celebrate Canada's 125th from Anita Stewart's Country
Inn Cookbook (641.5971 Page 128).

Rhubarb Relish

8 cups/2 L	finely chopped onions
4 cups/1 L	boiling water
8 cups/2 L	diced rhubarb
3 cups/750 ml	cider vinegar
5 cups/1.25 L	granulated sugar (or more if needed)
2 tps./10 ml	salt
1 tsp./5 ml	black pepper
2 tps./10 ml	ground cloves
2 tps./10 ml	cinnamon

Scald the cut-up onions in the boiling water. Drain and set the onions aside. To help prevent sticking, rub the bottom of a large kettle with a good shortening before adding the ingredients. Combine all the ingredients in the kettle. Cook until quite thick. Stir to keep from sticking. Store in sterilized jars. This is great with fish or pork. Makes four to five 2 cup (500 ml) jars.

New bankruptcy law impacts farmers

The updated federal Bankruptcy Act gives farmers some added rights and protection when a purchaser of their products becomes insolvent.

"Two new sections in the revised act will interest farmers," says Paul Gervais of the farm business management branch in Olds. "These two sections provide special rights for suppliers and farmers who deliver products to a purchaser who subsequently declares bankruptcy."

The legislation gives suppliers and farmers the right to repossess unpaid goods, and these rights are above every other creditor's claim or right against the purchaser for those goods, regardless of any other federal or provincial act or law Gervais notes. The provisions apply to any farmer or supplier who supplies livestock for slaughter, feed, grain, hay, fertilizer, chemicals or other inputs.

Rules in the new law require suppliers to present a written claim to an insolvent purchaser, the trustee or receiver for goods that were delivered, but not paid for, within a 30-day period prior to the bankruptcy or receivership. That notice of claim must be filed within 30 days of the bankruptcy.

Farmers should note this time period for agricultural products is reduced to goods delivered within 15 days prior of the bankruptcy or receivership, apparently due to the 'perishable' nature of agricultural products says Gervais.

The purchaser, trustee or receiver must provide the farmer with a written notice admitting the farmer's right to repossess. The farmer must exercise this right within 10 days after presentation of the written notice, unless the period is extended by mutual agreement says Cal Brandley, Alberta Agriculture's agricultural solicitor based in Lethbridge.

"Farmers and suppliers can only repossess products that haven't been used or further processed by the purchaser," Brandley notes. For example, a farmer can't repossess feed that has been processed or the livestock that ate the feed. The goods must be in the possession of purchaser, trustee or receiver; be identified as the goods delivered; and, not be fully paid for. As well, the goods must be in the same state as they were on delivery, and not been resold or are subject to any agreement for sale.

"And either party may apply to the courts if they can't come to an agreement," he adds.

The updated legislation also has a mechanism for a business in financial trouble to work out an agreement with its suppliers. "A purchaser can give a farmer a notice of intention," says Gervais. This is a proposal to work out an arrangement between the purchaser and the farmer. The notice doesn't affect the 3-day period after goods were delivered but not paid for.

"The new legislation reflects new realities," adds Gervais. "For example, some businesses in difficulty can be workable again through reorganization or restructuring in cooperation with suppliers."

Changes to Canada's 40-year-old Bankruptcy Act were passed by the federal Parliament in late June. While the act was given Royal Assent then, regulations still have not been finalized.

For more information on the recent changes to the Bankruptcy Act, contact Gervais in Olds at 556-4240, or Brandley in Lethbridge at 381-5131. Both numbers are toll-free in Alberta through the RITE system.

Victor worked for Ducks Unlimited at Brooks and Strathmore for 16 years. In 1954, on February 6, their only child Lloyd was born. Vic worked around Sundre in the winter and worked here fulltime after 1970, until his retirement in 1977. His health failed following a cancer operation in January of this year. He passed away July 28, 1992 at Olds, Alberta, at the age of 79 years.

The Gathering another success

Organizers are calling the 1992 Gathering another great success. Approximately 1,000 people attended the event on Saturday, July 25 at Alta-Bar Ranch.

The weather cooperated--not a drop of rain appeared. Many of those who came were local people who continue to support The Gathering, but, many were also visitors. This year, people from Alaska, Colorado, B.C., Saskatchewan, and a young boy, who entered the calf-dressing, from Mexico, joined the fun.

Visitors really seemed to enjoy the fun-filled rodeo. The cowboys entertained with a wild pack-horse race, team roping, and a branding competition. The kids in the audience participated in calf-dressing and mutton-busting. They also scrambled around the arena for candy! The show dogs were as popular as well.

Hayrides were popular. They went on throughout the afternoon taking visitors on a tour of the beautiful scenery at Mary-Allen and Carl Wilsons' ranch. Many people were heard commenting on how they wished they could live in such a glorious place.

The beef barbecue was super! One thousand hungry people were served the beef barbecue dinner in under an hour and there was lots of food! As always, the beef was delicious, the beans were great, and those donated homemade pies disappeared! Many people were responsible for the food preparation and service.

The blue-grass/country/gospel concert began at 4:15 and lasted until 10:30 p.m. Our M.C. for the entertainment was Harold Cooper who has already expressed an interest in coming back next year. This year, the talent was local folks as well as some entertainers from far away. Many visitors commented on the calibre of the music. Most of the 1,000 people stayed right till the end.

Sunday began with a church service and more music! Wayne "Cinch" Arthur was the speaker for Sunday and people were very intent on his message. The music was just a continuation of Saturday and, again, most people stayed right till the end. A beef-on-a-bun lunch was offered and served to approximately 500 people.

"The Gathering" committee was thankful for the support and encouragement received during the weekend. Although they didn't hit their target mark, they are still excited and inspired by the two-day event.

"The Gathering" is a non-profit, non-denominational activity. Any money collected through ticket sales or donations goes towards the cost of putting this event on.

The next Gathering will be held on the final weekend in July in 1993.
